Transgender Family Law 101

A. Introduction
This workshop seeks to provide basic and accessible California specific information about transgender people’s ability to: enter into or remain in legally recognized marriages or domestic partnerships; maintain custody and/or visitation with a child or children; and, participate in the adoption or foster care systems. Because this is an area of the law that is rapidly developing, the workshop is intended to provide only general information. If you have a specific legal question, you should contact an attorney for information tailored to your legal need. Both NCLR and TLC provide free legal information and can be contacted via the attorneys listed at the bottom of this handout.

1. Transgender Marriage and Child Custody Law

E. State of the law for marriage rights

- “Pre-Transition” Marriages – while the term “pre-transition” is an oversimplification for someone’s identity, it is used here to represent those marriages that are begun prior to a person transitioning. These marriages are strongly believed to remain valid. No case law or statute exists directly on point, however, California law is well settled that the only way to dissolve a marriage are divorce or death. Transition does not, by itself, dissolve a marriage.

- “Post-Transition” Marriages -- while the term “post-transition” is an oversimplification for someone’s identity, it is used here to represent those marriages that are begun after a person has transitioned. No explicit prohibitions exist in California or federal law to prevent a transgender person from entering into a heterosexual marriage. However, challenges – with mixed results -- have been made to the validity of marriages involving a transgender person in a number of cases across the U.S. The one case that has been fully litigated in California found that the underlying marriage was valid.

- While we have every reason to believe that the validity of marriages involving transgender people will be upheld in California, it is important that couples preserve as many rights as possible in the event that their marriage is ruled invalid upon challenge. Key steps to doing so include: a memorandum of understanding between the spouses, financial power of attorney, health care directive, and a will or trust. You can find models of the mou, power of attorney, and directive documents attached. You can use an attorney to prepare your will or trust or do it your self by utilizing one of the many “how to guides” now available.

F. State of the law for Domestic Partnerships

- Some open questions remain for transgender people entering into a domestic partnership. On the state level (where domestic partnerships will convey a wide array of rights and responsibilities beginning on January 1, 2005), the couple must be same-sex or at least one partner must be over the age of 62. For those city and counties that created domestic partnership registries prior to the passage of the state registry, it is sometimes the case that the couple can be any two people regardless of gender (however, all of these registries offer fewer protections and obligations than the state process).
G. State of the law for custody rights that flow from Marriages and Domestic Partnerships

- Biological children -- No explicit prohibition exists in California regarding the rights of a transgender person to retain custody or visitation rights to their biological child. However, a parent’s transgender identity is often an issue used in a custody hearing to the detriment of the transgender parent. Luckily, we have good case law in the state law judges from relying on this information in the absence of proof that the health and well-being of the child will be compromised.

- Children of a Post-Transition Marriage – many times, the transgender spouse in a post-transition marriage will adopt children of the marriage via spousal rights (a step-parent adoption). Occasionally, one partner will challenge the transgender parents rights or responsibilities to that child by attacking the underlying marriage. In addition to the above arguments made in Section A, additional arguments exist in California law for finding parental rights and responsibilities.

- Step Parent Adoption through a Domestic Partnership – If you and your partner are registered California Domestic Partners, either of you is able to adopt the other’s child or children through a step-parent adoption procedure (so long as all other step-parent adoption criteria are met). If you entered into your domestic partnership prior to your transition (and you and your partner are now an opposite-sex couple), some questions may be raised about your ability to utilize the step-parent adoption procedure (because, as noted above, only same-sex couples can be registered domestic partners). While the lack of any case law on the subject makes it impossible to predict how this issue would be handled by a court, anecdotal evidence suggests that, like a pre-transition marriage, transitioning does not, in and of itself, dissolve or void a domestic partnership.

2. Adoption

A. National Overview

- No states have a law that specifically bars transgender people from adopting, either as an individual or in a couple.
- There are three states that prohibit gay and lesbian adoption in some manner. Currently, Florida is the only state that categorically prohibits lesbians and gay individuals from becoming adoptive parents by statute. In addition, although not specifically directed at lesbian, gay and bisexual people, Utah prohibits adoptions by "a person who is cohabitating in a relationship that is not a legally valid and binding marriage under the laws of this state," and Mississippi prohibits "adoption by couples of the same gender."
- Whether a married couple where one member is transgender would be allowed to adopt in Utah and Mississippi is unclear. In Mississippi, the couple may be considered to be “of the same gender” if the person’s transgender status is known to those investigating the adoption and in Utah, the couple may be considered to be in a cohabiting relationship that is not a “legally valid and binding marriage.”
- Whether a transgender person may be allowed to adopt at all in Florida is also unclear. At least one transgender person has adopted a child in Florida, but the validity of this adoption may be challenged following the Kantaras v. Kantaras marriage dissolution case. It is likely that many other transgender people in Florida have adopted, though it is not clear whether their status as a transgender person has been known.
- While transgender people are not explicitly prohibited from adopting under the law in the above states or any others, adoption agencies, child welfare workers and judges may discriminate against transgender people during the adoption process; making the process more lengthy, difficult, or intrusive or by denying access to adoption outright.

B. Adoption in California

- California allows adoptions by lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender people, both as individuals or as couples, either through individual adoptions, joint adoptions, or step parent adoptions for domestic partners or married couples.
• If you are currently in a California domestic partnership and a child is born into the partnership after Jan 1, 2005 the adoption procedure is not necessary for the non-biological parent to be considered the legal parent, though other procedures may be necessary to safeguard your relationship.
• Depending on the county, a transgender person in California may still encounter difficulties adopting.

C. Hints

• Contact adoption agencies that are known to welcome lesbian and gay parents and which may, therefore, also be open to working with families that include a transgender parent.
• Have a supportive therapist or doctor with expertise in transgender issues available to help you address any questions or concerns raised by social workers, adoption officials or courts.
• Seek the counsel of an attorney with experience in transgender issues. His or her familiarity with transgender law can make or break a case.

3. Foster Parenting

A. National overview
• Arkansas is the only state that prohibits lesbians and gay men from being foster parents. It is likely that if a person’s transgender status is known, they would also prohibit a transgender person from foster parenting.
• Procedure to become a foster parent varies state by state.
• In all other states, a transgender person should be able to become a foster parent.

B. Foster Parenting in California
• Counties and foster family agencies may not discriminate against foster parents on the basis of their gender identity. It is unlawful to deny a person the ability to foster parent because they are transgender.
• A license is required to operate a foster home. The process requires a licensing worker to visit your home and meet with you and other family members. Minimum personal, safety and space requirements are required by law.
Memorandum of Understanding

This memorandum is entered into on the date shown below between _________________ (“Husband”) and _______________________ (“Wife”).

I. Recitals

A. The parties, upon entering into marriage, desire to establish that both have knowledge that XXXXXX is transgender.
B. By entering into this memorandum, XXXX and YYYY wish to make clear that they both understand that XXXX was identified as [male/female] at birth.
C. By entering into this memorandum, XXXX and YYYY wish to make clear that they both understand that XXXX is actually [female/male].
D. By entering into this memorandum, both parties make clear that they each fully accept the rights and responsibilities typically associated with marriage in California, despite the fact that XXXX is transgender.
E. Both parties agree that in the event that this marriage is dissolved, neither party will make arguments -- based on XXXX being transgender -- denying the other’s rights or their own responsibilities typically associated with marriage in California.
F. By entering into this memorandum, both parties have full knowledge that because XXXX is transgender they will be unable to conceive a child together.

Representations and Waivers

A. Each party has in good faith fully disclosed all relevant information concerning XXXX’s status as transgender.
B. Each party has in good faith fully answered all questions presented by the other about XXXX’s status as transgender and the possible effects of said status on their marriage.
C. Neither party has any remaining questions about XXXX’s status as transgender and the possible effects of said status on their marriage.
D. Each party recognizes that this Memorandum may alter rights each would otherwise have under California law.
E. By entering into this memorandum, each party expressly waives such rights.
F. This memorandum takes effect at the time when a marriage license is issued.
G. The later invalidation of such a marriage license does not invalidate this agreement.
H. In the event that any provision of this Memorandum is deemed invalid or unenforceable, the remaining provisions are severable and remain effective.

In witness thereof, the parties have entered into this agreement on [date].

ADVANCE HEALTH CARE DIRECTIVE

Explanation

You have the right to give instructions about your own health care. You also have the right to name someone else to make health care decisions for you. This form lets you do either or both of these things. It also lets you express your wishes regarding donation of organs and the designation of your primary physician. If you use this form, you may complete or modify all or any part of it. You are free to use a different form.

Part 1 of this form is a power of attorney for health care. Part 1 lets you name another individual as agent to make health care decisions for you if you become incapable of making your own decisions or if you want someone else to make those decisions for you now even though you are still capable. You may name an alternate agent to act for you if your first choice is not willing, able, or reasonably available to make decisions for you. (Your agent may not be an operator or employee of a community care facility or a residential care facility where you are receiving care, or an employee of the health care institution where you are receiving care, unless your agent is related to you, is your registered domestic partner, or is a co-worker. Your supervising health care provider can never act as your agent.)

Unless the form you sign limits the authority of your agent, your agent may make all health care decisions for you. This form has a place for you to limit the authority of your agent. You need not limit the authority of your agent if you wish to rely on your agent for all health care decisions that may have to be made. If you choose not to limit the authority of your agent, your agent will have the right to:

(a) Consent or refuse consent to any care, treatment, service, or procedure to maintain, diagnose, or otherwise affect a physical or mental condition;
(b) Select or discharge health care providers and institutions;
(c) Approve or disapprove diagnostic tests, surgical procedures and programs of medication; and
(d) Direct the provision, withholding, or withdrawal of artificial nutrition and hydration and all other forms of health care, including cardiopulmonary resuscitation;
(e) Make anatomical gifts, authorize an autopsy, and direct the disposition of your remains.

Part 2 of this form lets you give specific instructions about any aspect of your health care, whether or not you appoint an agent. Choices are provided for you to express your wishes regarding the provision, withholding, or withdrawal of treatment to keep you alive, as well as the provision of pain relief. Space is provided for you to add to the choices you have made or for you to write out any additional wishes. If you are satisfied to allow your agent to determine what is best for you in making end-of-life decisions, you need not fill out part 2 of this form.

Part 3 of this form lets you express an intention to donate your bodily organs and tissues following your death.

Part 4 of this form lets you designate a physician to have primary responsibility for your health care.

After completing this form, sign and date the form at the end. The form must be signed by two qualified witnesses or acknowledged before a notary public. Give a copy of the signed and completed form to your physician, to any other health care providers you may have, to any health care institution at which you are receiving care, and to any health-care agents you have named. You should talk to the person you have named as agent to make sure that he or she understands your wishes and is willing to take the responsibility.

You have the right to revoke this advance health care directive or replace this form at any time.

AB 458 FACT SHEET
Foster Care Non-Discrimination Act

AB 458, the Foster Care Non-Discrimination Act, was signed into law on September 6, 2003 and goes into effect on January 1, 2004. AB 458 prohibits discrimination in the foster care system on the basis of actual or perceived race, ethnic group identification, ancestry, national origin, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, mental or physical disability, or HIV status. Because training is crucial to enable service providers to fulfill their responsibilities to provide safe and nondiscriminatory care, placement, and services to foster children, AB 458 also mandates initial and ongoing training for all group home administrators, foster parents, and department licensing personnel.

This law is the first of its kind in the United States to explicitly include protections for lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, and questioning (LGBTQ) youth and adults involved with the foster care system.

Specifically, the law provides:

- All foster children and all adults engaged in the provision of care and services to foster children have a right to fair and equal access to all available services, placement, care, treatment and benefits.

- All foster children and all adults engaged in the provision of care and services to foster children have a right not to be subjected to discrimination or harassment on the basis of actual or perceived sexual orientation or gender identity.

- Adds these rights and protections to the California Foster Child List of Rights.

- All group home administrators, foster parents, and department licensing personnel must receive initial and ongoing training on the right of a foster child to have fair and equal access to all available services and to not be subjected to harassment or discrimination based on their actual or perceived sexual orientation or gender identity.

- All community college districts that provide orientation and training to relative caregivers must make available to relative and extended family caregivers orientation and training courses that cover the right of a foster child to have fair and equal access to all available services, placement, care, treatment, and benefits and the right of foster youth not to be subjected to discrimination or harassment on the basis of actual or perceived sexual orientation or gender identity.

LGBTQ Youth in the California Foster Care System
A Question and Answer Guide

This question and answer guide is designed to address many of the frequently asked questions about protecting lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, and questioning (LGBTQ) youth in the California foster care system from harassment and discrimination.

Are there LGBTQ youth in foster care?

Yes. At any one time there are approximately 260,000 youth in the foster care system in the United States¹ and approximately 42,500 youth in the California foster care system.² While it is impossible to determine precisely the number of LGBTQ youth in the foster care system, recent studies suggest that LGBTQ youth make up between 5 and 10 percent of the total foster youth population.³ The actual percentage may be even higher since LGBTQ youth are over-represented in the foster care pool due to discrimination and abuse many of these youth face in their families of origin and in their schools.⁴

Are LGBTQ youth in the foster care system at risk of being harassed or discriminated against?

Yes. LGBTQ youth are disproportionately targeted for harassment and discrimination in the foster care system. In one of the only studies of its kind, a New York Task Force found:

₁ ○ 100% of LGBTQ youth in New York City group homes reported that they were verbally harassed on the basis of their sexual orientation or gender identity while at their group home.⁵
₂ ○ 70% reported physical violence due to their sexual orientation or gender identity.⁶
₂ ○ 78% were removed or ran away from their foster placements as a result of hostility toward their sexual orientation or gender identity.⁷
₂ ○ 56% spent time living on the streets because they felt “safer” there than they did living in their group or foster home.⁸

This abuse is perpetrated not only by youth peers, but also by facility staff and other service providers. When the abuse is between peers, often it is condoned by facility staff or goes unaddressed.

What are some examples of discrimination that LGBTQ youth might encounter in the foster care system?

Examples of unlawful discrimination include:

₁ ○ Failing or refusing to take steps to protect an LGBTQ youth from harassment based on their actual or perceived sexual orientation or gender identity;
ý Failing to use the requested name and pronoun that is in accordance with a transgender youth’s gender identity;
ý Treating displays of affection by same-sex couples differently than displays of affection by different-sex couples;
ý Refusing to allow a youth to wear clothing that is consistent with their gender identity;
ý Not allowing an LGBTQ youth to attend a gay prom;
ý Confiscating LGBTQ supportive materials.

Do foster care providers have a legal responsibility to protect LGBTQ youth from harassment and discrimination?

Yes. California law specifically protects foster children from harassment and discrimination based on actual or perceived sexual orientation or gender identity. All LGBTQ youth in foster care must be provided with equal access to all available services, placement, care, treatment and benefits. The law covers all aspects of foster care, including all available services, placement, care, treatment, and benefits, and the right to not be subjected to discrimination or harassment.

In addition, all foster youth have a constitutional right to equal protection under the law. This means that all group home facilities must protect LGBTQ youth, and those perceived to be LGBTQ, from harassment, just as they must protect all foster youth from harassment on the basis of race, religion, and sex. If group home providers ignore incidents of harassment because they believe LGBTQ youth should expect to be harassed or that they have brought the harassment upon themselves by being open about their sexual orientation or gender identity, the have violated the youth’s right to equal protection.

In addition, all youth have constitutional rights to freedom of expression, which may include the right to be open about their sexual orientation or gender identity. The First Amendment and the Federal Due Process and Equal Protection Clauses may also protect the right of a transgender youth to dress in accordance with his or her gender identity in a group home.

Does the law require foster care providers to receive training about this nondiscrimination requirement?

Yes. Under the California Foster Care Nondiscrimination Act all group home administrators, foster parents, and department licensing personnel must receive initial and ongoing training on the rights of a foster child to have fair and equal access to all available services and the right to not be subjected to harassment or discrimination based on their actual or perceived sexual orientation or gender identity.

In addition, all community college districts that provide orientation and training to relative caregivers must make available to these caregivers, orientation and training courses that cover the rights of a foster child to have fair and equal access to all available services and to not be subjected to harassment or discrimination on the basis of actual or perceived sexual orientation or gender identity.
In addition to the required trainings, what other steps can service providers take to ensure they comply with the nondiscrimination requirements?

Foster care programs should adopt and enforce written anti-harassment/anti-discrimination policies that explicitly prohibit harassment and discrimination on the basis of actual or perceived sexual orientation or gender identity. Both the policy and the forms for filing complaints under the policy should be readily available to foster youth.

Programs should also provide anti-bias training for youth and any other persons involved in the foster care system who are not mandated to receive training under the law, including child welfare workers and other group home staff. All facilities should have information and materials about LGBTQ issues available for staff and youth.

Are foster parents required to take in a foster child who is LGBTQ even if they feel that homosexuality is morally wrong?

Foster parents are free to hold any beliefs they choose about homosexuality. Foster parents and relative caregivers are not paid employees of the state. Instead they care for foster children in their own homes and are permitted under current practice to decide on an individual basis whether to accept and retain an individual child in their care. But once a foster parent or relative caregiver accepts a child into their home, they have a legal responsibility to provide care to the child without discrimination on the basis of actual or perceived sexual orientation, gender identity, HIV status, and other protected categories.

Because a change in living environment is traumatic for any child, if a foster parent or relative caregiver cannot fulfill their responsibility of caring for a particular child, then they should notify the child’s social worker and seek additional training, counseling, or other assistance with the goal of keeping the child in the home. Only as a last resort should a foster parent or relative caregiver request that a child be removed from their home.

How do we protect LGBTQ youth in foster care from harassment and discrimination and still respect the religious and cultural diversity of foster parents and youth?

It does not violate any person’s religious beliefs or disrespect any person’s cultural background to teach young people or adults that violence, name calling and other harassment are wrong and to ensure that all youth are treated equally. Everyone is free to hold any beliefs they choose regarding homosexuality and gender, so long as they do not harass, threaten, or discriminate against foster youth because of their sexual orientation or gender identity. Developing an atmosphere of respect for diversity in all foster care placements provides the necessary space for all foster youth to feel comfortable and safe.

In addition, it does not violate the religious freedom of staff or administrators to require that staff appropriately respond to violence, discrimination and harassment.

Adopting and enforcing inclusive anti-harassment and discrimination policies and training all staff on these non-discrimination requirements will help service providers ensure that all of their youth are provided with the safe and affirming placements to which they are entitled.
According to the U.S Department of Health and Human Services, Administration on Children, Youth, and Families, and the Children’s Bureau on September 30, 2001 there were 542,000 kids in foster care in the United States. The median age for these kids was 10.6 years old. Approximately 49% or 260,475 were over the age of 11. Statistics available at: http://www.acf.hhs.gov/programs/cb/publications/afcars/report8.htm (last visited December 2, 2003).

According to the Child Welfare Research Center Child Welfare Services report, there were 90,049 children in foster care in California on July 1, 2003. Of these youth, 42,612 were over the age of 11.
